Expanding access to e-resources

- Free access to back issues (not including the Digital Archive) for the duration of the deal. For most journals these files extend back to 1997.
- Almost 60% of titles are indexed by Thomson Reuters - 161 journals are indexed in the Social Sciences Citation Index (SSCI) and the Science Citation Index (SCI) with a further 46 titles indexed only in the Arts & Humanities Index.
- Behavioral and Brain Sciences is placed top of the entire Social Sciences Citation Index.
- American Political Science Review, Behavioral and Brain Sciences, Journal of Economic History, World Politics, and Microscopy & Microanalysis are all ranked number 1 in their categories.
- Powerful search engine, which provides full-text searching throughout the database, and offers the advantages of Boolean searching.
- Access via Athens and Shibboleth as well as via IP address.
- A mobile version (which also requires less bandwidth) is available.
- COUNTER 3 compliant usage statistics.
- Citation links to CrossRef, PubMed and Google Scholar.
- Perpetual access to paid for content.
- All content is with OCLC to ensure long term availability. Agreements are due with PORTICO.
- Excellent quality and value as shown by the 2008 LISU Pricing and Quality Survey – journals from Cambridge University Press were found to have the lowest median prices per impact factor for the majority of the period surveyed (2000-6), as well as the lowest monetary price increases year on year.
